Executive Summary

The Modern Languages Department supports the mission of Millikin University in preparing students for professional success, democratic citizenship in a diverse global community, and a personal life of meaning and value. In the context of the Spanish major, the mission of the Department is to produce graduates who achieve the following four learning outcome goals:

- (1) Students will demonstrate proficiency in speaking, listening, reading, and writing in Spanish.
- (2) Students will demonstrate an ability to engage in meaningful interactions in Spanish with people from other countries.
- (3) Students will demonstrate an ability to analyze and conduct research on works of literature from the Spanish-speaking world.
- (4) Students will demonstrate their comprehension and appreciation of the diversity of the Hispanic culture and their understanding of the social, historical, political, and cultural contexts of the Spanish-speaking nations of the world.

The core curriculum begins with freshman-level courses in Beginning Spanish and Continuing Spanish, as well as a sophomore-level course in Intermediate Spanish, all of which establish a student's competency in Spanish and readiness to continue on with more advanced studies in Spanish. As a student's course of study within the Spanish major continues, he or she engages more specific on focused areas of study in Spanish conversation and composition, and in courses that deal with the culture, art, business, literature, film, theatre and linguistics of the Spanish-speaking world.

Part of the Modern Languages Department's ongoing revitalization is an establishment of thorough and ongoing assessment at the course and program level. It is hoped and anticipated that the listing of artifacts and rubrics here provided will be helpful in continuing to make assessment more systematic throughout the Spanish major and the Modern Languages area.

Goals

The purpose of the Spanish major is stated in four Modern Languages Department goals:

- (1) Students will demonstrate proficiency in speaking, listening, reading, and writing in Spanish.
- (2) Students will demonstrate an ability to engage in meaningful interactions in Spanish with people from other countries.
- (3) Students will demonstrate an ability to analyze and conduct research on works of literature from the Spanish-speaking world.
- (4) Students will demonstrate their comprehension and appreciation of the diversity of the Hispanic culture and their understanding of the social, historical, political, and cultural contexts of the Spanish-speaking nations of the world.

These Modern Languages Department goals match well with Millikin's University-wide learning goals:

- (1) Millikin students will prepare for professional success.
- (2) Millikin students will actively engage in the responsibilities of citizenship in their communities.
- (3) Millikin students will discover and develop a personal life of meaning and value.

The table on the following page shows how Modern Languages Department goals for the Spanish major relate to University-wide goals:

Learning Goal	Corresponding MU Learning Goal Number(s)
Students will demonstrate proficiency in speaking, listening, reading, and writing in Spanish.	1
Students will demonstrate an ability to engage in meaningful interactions in Spanish with people from other countries.	1, 2
Students will demonstrate an ability to analyze, and conduct research on works of literature from the Spanish-speaking world.	1
Students will demonstrate their comprehension and appreciation of the diversity of Hispanic culture, and their understanding of the social, historical, political, and cultural contexts of the Spanish-speaking nations of the world.	1, 2, 3

Students majoring in Spanish are required to take 21 credit hours of Spanish at the 300 level or above, including the capstone course SP480: Spanish Advanced Conversation and Composition. The prerequisite for taking a 300-level course is three semesters of Spanish-language courses.

The mission of the Spanish major is to prepare students for a career in teaching, for graduate studies in literature, or to provide the necessary Spanish-language skills for success in other fields.

Snapshot/Overview

Two full-time instructors and two adjunct instructors teach Spanish. The two full-time instructors include one Professor and one Assistant Professor.

Dr. Eduardo Cabrera, Chair and Professor of Spanish, worked as Chief Reader of AP Spanish Literature and Culture during the 2016-2017 academic year (College Board/ Educational Testing Service)

The Spanish Major program has experienced major change in terms of its curriculum and requirements. From a complicated requirement of courses and sequence of courses, the Spanish Major was changed to a simpler requirement of seven courses beyond SP 223, Intermediate Spanish, including SP 480: Spanish Advanced Conversation and Composition (this capstone course was added to the curriculum in Spring 2005). This change improved the situation for scheduling as well as enhancing the students' ability to choose courses according to their career plans and academic interests.

The Department continues implementing a communication-oriented approach to teaching. Every class was observed, and changes were recommended with the goal of adjusting to that methodology.

Lab attendance is now required of every student taking elementary language courses.

The Department continues using a communicative language lab for students who are taking Spanish 103 and also for students taking Spanish 114, which consists of group work with the coordination of a facilitator. Its main goal is that the students can achieve an advanced level of oral proficiency. Students spend an hour per week in the lab talking about the topics that are being studied in the language classes.

The Chair of the Department (Dr. Eduardo Cabrera) has been in charge of interviewing and hiring the tutors and facilitators for the lab. He has been also responsible of monitoring the functioning of the lab: the work of tutors and facilitators as well as the feedback from students attending the lab sessions.

The curriculum for the Spanish major consists of traditional courses in language, literature and culture, as well as practical courses like SP 330 (Spanish for Business), SP 340 (Theatre Performance in Spanish), and SP 350 (Study Abroad in Spanish) and SP 310 (Spanish for Health Professions). Those last four courses have been added to reflect 1) the tendency among Spanish programs across the country toward the inclusion of “practical” offerings, and 2) education within a global environment.

Learning Story

The first-year curriculum in Spanish establishes the student’s proficiency in basic spoken and written Spanish, through Spanish 103 (Beginning Spanish) and Spanish 114 (Continuing Spanish). The second-year curriculum, with Spanish 223 (Intermediate Spanish) confirms the student’s readiness to proceed into more advanced junior- and senior-level courses that engage Spanish conversation and composition; culture, art, business, literature, film and theatre of the Spanish-speaking world, including Latin America, Spain, and U.S. Latino/Latina culture; and Spanish linguistics.

To complete the Spanish major, a student must take a minimum of 21 credits above Spanish 223, including the capstone SP 480: Spanish Advanced Conversation and Composition, from the following courses:

- Spanish 301, Spanish Conversation and Composition I;
- Spanish 302, Spanish Conversation and Composition II;
- Spanish 303, Culture of Spain;
- Spanish 304, Culture of Latin America;
- Spanish 305, Contemporary Hispanic Film;
- Spanish 310, Spanish for Health Professions;
- Spanish 312, Spanish for Radio Production;
- Spanish 314, Spanish for Journalism;
- Spanish 320, Art, Literature, and Film of U.S. Latinos;
- Spanish 321, Survey of Spanish Literature;
- Spanish 323, Survey of Latin American Literature I);
- Spanish 324, Survey of Latin American Literature II);
- Spanish 330, Spanish for Business;
- Spanish 340, Theatre Performance in Spanish;
- Spanish 350, Study Abroad in Spanish;
- Spanish 402, Linguistics.

- Spanish 480, Spanish Advanced Conversation and Composition.

A Spanish Major Curriculum Map is offered as an appendix to this document.

A Spanish Club was created, which makes it possible for the Spanish major students to participate in cultural activities as well as in round tables to practice their oral communicative skills.

A radio show in Spanish Español en Acción was created, making possible for the students to participate as guests. Students may improve their listening and oral skills as well as their knowledge of the cultures of the Spanish-speaking world.

The creation of the language communicative lab allows the students with a Spanish major to work as special tutors.

Double majors and the preparation for professional success:

One of the characteristics of the major in Spanish is that it supports students in their other field of specialization. All Spanish majors have another major. Most students pursuing another career use Spanish as a way to improve their work and, in this way, to become a successful professional. Spanish majors have the following first or second major:

Art
Accounting
Behavioral Sciences
Biology
Business Administration Management
Chemistry
Communication
Education
Marketing
Music
Nursing
Political Science
Theater

The capstone required course for Spanish majors, SP480: Spanish Advanced Conversation and Composition, provides opportunities for the students to make a direct connection between what they learned in the Spanish courses and the main topics in their second (or first) field of study.

Description of the capstone: Capstone course required of all Spanish majors. Students will compose and complete an individualized project and participate in an advanced dramatization demonstrating a high level of Spanish conversation and composition abilities.

Assessment Methods

For the assessment of the learning goals for the Spanish major the following courses will be used:

Learning Goals	Courses
1	SP 302 Spanish Composition
2	SP 304 Culture of Latin America
3	SP 481 Mexican Short Stories
4	SP 301 Spanish Conversation

Assessment Data

The grading rubrics used to assess each learning goal have a maximum of 20 possible points. Those points have been divided for reporting purposes in the following way: Excellent: 19-20; Adequate: 13-18; Nominal: less than 13.

The students should be ranked “adequate,” with a minimum of 13 points, if the learning goals are being achieved.

The following assessment criteria will be used to evaluate student progress in achieving the learning goals:

“Green light” (an acceptable level or clearly heading in the right direction and not requiring any immediate change in the course of action).

“Yellow light” (not an acceptable level; either improving, but not as quickly as desired or declining slightly. Strategies and approaches should be reviewed and appropriate adjustments taken to reach an acceptable level or desire rate of improvement).

“Red light” (current status or direction of change is unacceptable. Immediate, high priority actions should be taken to address this area).

Learning Goal 1: Students will demonstrate proficiency in speaking, listening, reading and writing in Spanish.

Analysis of Assessment Results

The analysis of the data shows that the Spanish major is in the right direction.

Learning Goal 1: Assessment for SP302: Spanish Composition

The assessment of the learning goal for the written component of the Spanish Conversation and Composition course shows that the Department continues doing a very good job during the first semesters of the Spanish Language courses; therefore building a strong foundation for the upper division courses.

This course includes several components in order to achieve the objectives of each ability in second language learning. The oral component includes 2 oral presentations, class discussion of the material presented in class, and the comprehension component of questions and answers for each reading material. Students engage in reading the text and materials in order to improve and demonstrate their reading abilities in class. A grammar component is also added for discussion, writing and practice during classes to improve any issues that may arise with compositions.

The writing component is achieved through note-taking, assigned paragraphs, and compositions. This ability is also evaluated with the preparation of a professional cover letter for a position in the job market. At the end, students have a series of assignments that enable them to perform better in a real life environment using the Spanish language and the culture. Students can perform better when they receive assignments in other advanced courses due to the skills acquired regarding essay writing and academic argument in compositions.

Assessment result: 1 For assessing Learning Goal 1, compositions have been used as artifacts. From the 15 students, 53.3% falls within the category “excellent”, 33.3% “adequate” and 13.3% nominal.

Total of Excellent and Adequate combined: 86.6%.

Learning Goal 2:

Assessment for SP 304 Culture of Latin America

The learning goal 2 for our department entailed students demonstrating an ability to engage in meaningful interactions in Spanish with people from other countries. The assessment of this learning goal was achieved in Assessment of SP 304 Culture of Latin America, which shows how the Department continues to do a very good job in its upper division Spanish Culture courses.

In this course, students gained a historical panoramic view of Latin America through its material culture [i.e. art, fiction, poetry, documentary, and film]. Students developed a basic understanding of the diverse civilizations shaping Latin American identity. Some of the fundamental questions of the course centered on the following notions: What is Latin America? When was it named Latin America? Who is Latin American? How have the answers to these questions changed over time? In order to arrive to any possible definite answer, students first developed an understanding of the pre-Columbian civilizations alongside Iberian civilizations. Students learned about colonization in Latin America, and its lasting impact. Students also studied the wars of liberation and independence, followed by the era of modernization in the nineteenth century and concluding with a general understanding of the lasting impacts of North American imperialism—often tied to capitalism and neoliberalism.

Throughout the semester students had short readings, art analysis, and documentary assignments. Their knowledge of this material was assessed with online writing exercises, in class writing assignments as well as in-class quizzes. Drawing from course discussions, students wrote a 4-6 final research paper in MLA format, analyzing one material culture from Latin America. The main objective of this final essay was to improve students’ critical writing and thinking skills in Spanish, while learning about Latin American culture. All of these writing tasks assessed how students were able to draw connections between the cultural productions seen in class and Latin American culture. The students who developed the best essays will be submitting a panel proposal to present their original research at The 16th Ohio Latin Americanist Conference in Columbus, Ohio this upcoming Fall 2017. Also, students were expected to attend Millikin Academic Interdisciplinary Conference (MAIC), where they engaged in meaningful interactions in Spanish with people from other countries.

Assessment result: For assessing Learning Goal 2, students Final Essay have been used as artifacts. From the 24 students, 16 got a grade that falls within the category “excellent,” 6 got a grade that falls within the category “adequate”, and 2 within the “nominal” category. 91.6% of the students are at the excellent or adequate level.

Learning Goal 3:

Assessment for SP 481 Mexican Short Stories

The learning goal 3 for our department entailed students demonstrating ability to analyze and conduct research on works of literature from the Spanish-speaking world. The assessment of the learning goal for this engagement was achieved in Assessment of SP 481 Mexican Short Stories, which shows that the Department continues to do an excellent job in upper division Literature Courses in Spanish.

In this course students expanded their Spanish writing, speaking, comprehension, and listening skills. Students practiced literary analysis through close-reading exercises. Throughout the semester for homework students read Mexican fiction. Their knowledge of this material was assessed with online reactions, creative writing exercises, and in-class quizzes. Also, students had two presentations based on literary and cultural theory research articles. The overall objective of this course was to improve students’ critical writing and thinking skills while analyzing fiction and non-fiction texts in Spanish. Students simultaneously applied literary and cultural theory to primary texts. Students achieved this by reading Mexican fiction from the end of the nineteenth century to the present, while learning about the cultural and historical significance of each text within the Hispanic world. Students also gained a panoramic view of the literary movements, genres, and styles in Latin America within a Mexican context.

One of the highlights of the course was to have Liliana V. Blum, a Mexican short story author, as a guest artist via Skype. Through this digital interaction students engaged in meaningful dialogue with the author as their exchanged centered on the themes and topics within her short stories and the author shared how she first began to write short stories, and how she imagines her work intersecting with discourses of cultural theory and literary analysis. Having had this author as a guest artist revitalized students’ interest in the subject matter and motivated/ influenced their analysis of short stories and their creative writing as well as their final research paper.

Students developed a 4-6-page final research paper in MLA format. Students were expected to do a close reading of one of the authors read in class, but on a text not discussed in class. In this close reading, they were expected to research articles on literary analysis and cultural theory as it pertained to the theses of their essay. This writing task assessed how students were able to draw connections between the text’s literary style, historical context, and notions of gender, race, and social class. The students who developed the best essays will be submitting a panel proposal to present their original research at The 16th Ohio Latin Americanist Conference in Columbus, Ohio this upcoming Fall 2017.

Assessment result: For assessing Learning Goal 3, student's final research papers have been used as artifacts. From the 13 students, 6 got a grade that falls within the category "excellent," 5 got a grade that falls within the category "adequate", and 2 within the "nominal" category. 84.6% of the students are at the excellent or adequate level.

Learning Goal 4:

Assessment for SP301: Spanish Conversation

The assessment of the learning goal for the oral component of the Spanish Conversation course shows that the Department continues doing a very good job during the first semesters of the Spanish language courses, building a strong foundation for the upper division courses. The Spanish Conversation and Composition I course (together with the Spanish Conversation and Composition II course) is one of the courses recommended to be taken at the beginning of the major. Most of the students take that course right or soon after they take SP 223: Intermediate Spanish.

This is a very important result: 100% of the students at the excellent or adequate level.

With the strong formation in oral expression in the Spanish conversation course, students are able to succeed in the other upper division courses. They will be able to communicate effectively in class, to participate in discussions, and contribute with their insights.

The oral component of the course has also benefited from a stronger foundation in the first semesters of Spanish language courses. On the year 2005 the Department created a Communicative Lab, in which students taking the first two semesters of Spanish can practice the target language with the assistance of a facilitator (an advanced Spanish major student).

In this class students watched short films from the Hispanic world (Latin America and Spain), learned about those cultures and, at the same time, practiced their listening comprehension skills. Students also read different kind of readings (essays, short stories, dramas), discussed about them in an organized way, improving their communication skills.

For assessing Learning Goal 1, dialogues have been used as artifacts. From the 9 students, 7 got a grade that falls within the category "excellent," 2 got a grade that falls within the category "adequate", and none within the "nominal" category. 100% of the students at the excellent or adequate level.

Follow up and Improvement Plans

The capstone course (required to all Spanish majors), SP480 Spanish Advanced Conversation and Composition, continues being offered every Spring semester. All students who take this course make a research presentation at the Celebration of Scholarship event. This has been an important activity, not only to showcase students' skills to do research but also to show prospective Spanish major students what will be expected from them. That course allows for more integration of theory and practice, since students work on a special project relevant to their major. Those students who are double major will continue to be able to work in a project that put together the acquired knowledge in both fields.

Faculty teaching courses within the Spanish major will continue to meet to discuss assessment of the learning goals for that academic program.

Students who are majoring in Spanish will continue to have the opportunity to work as tutors and facilitators, developing their skills in those areas. This is an important experience especially for those students who are thinking to pursue a teaching career. It is equally important for the development of leadership skills.

The radio show "Español en Acción," transmitted weekly, will continue to serve students for improving their communication skills.
